

This book is about my travels in Egypt during the 2009 – 2011 time frame. It's written rather differently though than my other books in that the bulk of the text are the letters to family and friends that I wrote while in Egypt, which lends somewhat of a more personal touch to the contents. I have included a few hundred pictures that I personally took while in Egypt and actually it was difficult at times to choose which pictures to include in this book since I have nearly a thousand of them. Additionally, I didn't include all the letters I wrote from Egypt, just those I thought would be of most interest to my intended audience. Some of the experiences included in this book include the class I received on adjusting to the culture which was taught by local Egyptians, daily life experiences, my trip to the pyramids of Giza and an unusual event while inside one of the pyramids, the Egyptian museum in Cairo, my attendance at an Egyptian wedding, the World War II museum in El-Alamein, and a variety of other ventures. I do hope you enjoy both the text and the pictures.
