Here are four reds and a white to remind us that Portugal and Spain are producing some of the greatest wine values in the world today.

Rioja creates smoky, earthy, subtle reds with the Tempranillo grape, while the Priorat region makes rich, dense, powerful reds from the Garnacha variety. The Ribera del Duero also employs the Tempranillo grape, yielding wines bigger and more powerful than those of Rioja. And this is just a few of the reds we will try. This was perfectly exemplified when a friend had walked into a wine shop in Saint Paul, MN, that specializes in "Spanish and Portuguese Wines", and ask if they. Classic Wines from Spain and Portugal.
